CENTURY OF VIOLENCE DISCUSSION ORGANIZER

Group Directions: Working in your groups of four, you will spend five minutes discussing each of the following questions pertaining to the article that you have previously read and annotated. Each member of the group will speak for an allotted time, during which time the other group members must listen carefully, without interrupting, and take notes in the appropriate section of the organizer. In the final round of each question, you may discuss freely as a group and record your final answer combining ideas from all group members. At the end, we will discuss the Quaestio and respond individually in writing.

Class Discussion of the Quaestio

Directions: As a class, we will discuss the Quaestio in light of the readings and the group discussions. Students should take notes on the responses given by their classmates just as was done in the groups, and then conclude by writing a Final Composite Response to the Quaestio.
